GAME DEVELOPERS CONFERENCE®
MOSCONE CENTER · SAN FRANCISCO, CA
MARCH 2-6, 2015 · EXPO: MARCH 4-6, 2015

PART ONE: ONKALO

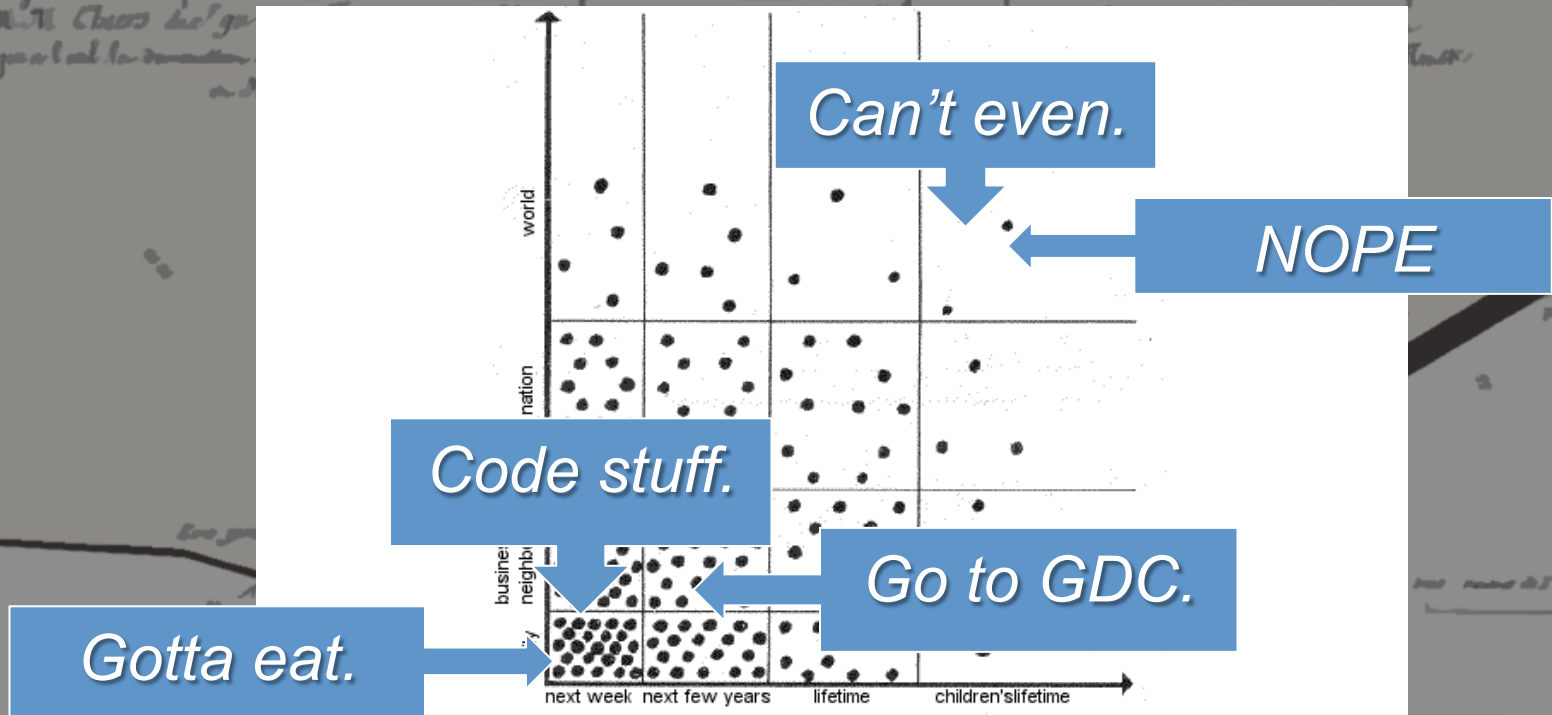

This place is a message. Pay attention to it.

This place is not a place of honor.

This place contains a danger.

This place is best left uninhabited.

Focusing Beyond is Difficult.

Further Reading: Meadows, Donella H. The Limits to growth... 1972.

More and more of us want to gain a measure of reliable control over not just our creative and technical process, but our destinies as game developers.

Today's goal: look to that destiny.

A dangerous condition exists for indie developers.

This talk is not a StatsDump™.

I am not here to argue philosophy.

These are my conclusions.

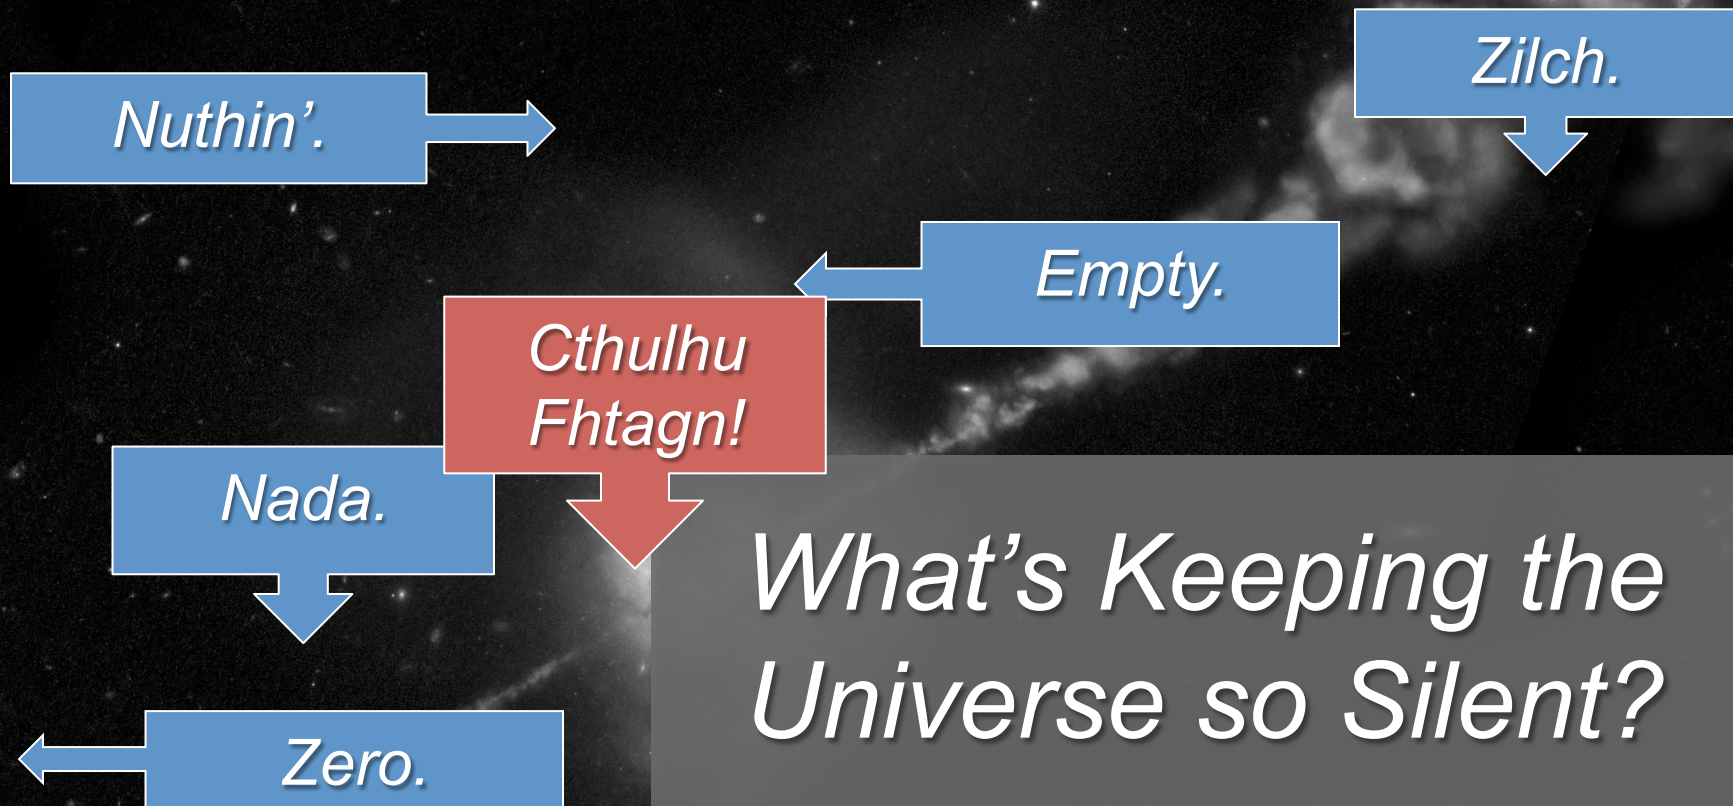

I am here with an agenda.

We [indies] need to act with intelligence as well as courage, with healthy skepticism as well as firm belief, and with respect for ourselves as creators as well as respect for our players.

PART TWO: BONO IN THE HALLS OF R'LYEH

Why is this program erroneously rejected by three C++ compilers?

474 I am having some difficulty compiling a C++ program that I've written.

This program is very simple and, to the best of my knowledge, conforms to all the rules set forth in the C++ Standard. I've read over the entirety of ISO/IEC 14882:2003 twice to be sure.

The program is as follows:

```
#include <iostream>

int main(int argc, char argv)
{
    std::cout << "Hello World!" << std::endl;
    return 0;
}
```

Here is the output I received when trying to compile this program with Visual C++ 2010:

```
c:\dev>cl /nologo helloworld.png cl : Command line warning D8024 : unrecognized source file type 'helloworld.png', object file helloworld.png : fatal error LNK1107: invalid or corrupt file: cannot read at 0x172
```

Disheartened, I tried g++ 4.5.2, but it was equally unhelpful:

```
c:\dev>g++ helloworld.png helloworld.png: file not recognized: file format not recognized collect2: ld returned 1 exit status
