Building Replayable Narrative
Out of Lots of Tiny Pieces

Who am I?

- Creative Director/Writer
- 19 Years of Linear Narratives.
 - Thief
 - System Shock 2
 - Freedom Force
 - FF vs 3rd Reich
 - BioShock
 - BioShock Infinite

Why Change?

- Didn't want to keep building "bigger"
- Linear puts boundaries between us and audience.
 - Would you Kindly only works once.
- Love systemic games. Narrative doesn't lend itself to systems.
- To do something different, back to drawing board.

This is NOT

- A design for a specific game.
- A product pitch.
- A specific development plan.
- An intellectual property.
- If your headlines includes “Levine reveals new game” you’ve written the wrong headline.
- All the “content” is basically ripped off from every other game ever made.

What this is

- It's my way of contributing to a conversation that I think a lot of smart people are thinking about.

What this is

- It's my way of contributing to a conversation that I think a lot of smart people are thinking about.
- It's my initial scratching in the dirt to figure out a way to build player driven replayable narrative gameplay.

Negatives of Linear Narrative

- Expensive to make.
- Pieces don't speak to each other.
- Branching exists, but with limited states and interaction.
- Doesn't fully embrace the unique power of games.
- Not player driven.
- Multiple endings still mean fixed number of player states.
- Can only add ON, not add IN.
- There is good work in this area (Witcher, etc.) but wanted a fundamentally different approach.

The Traditional Approach to AI

- Tech approach has been to simulate a person, not a character.
- Everybody on the planet is bad at that.
- A robust solution lies beyond any technology or creative horizon.
- Overly ambitious can lead to paralysis.

First Steps?

Physics Wasn't Built in a Day

- 2D circles---rectangles---3D spheres---cylinders---axis-aligned boxes---arbitrary polygonal shapes---ragdolls---cloth---fluid...
- Don't model everything...model a LIMITED SET OF BELIEVABLE AND IMPACTFUL THINGS.

The Opportunity

- Create a narratively driven wherein:
 - Narrative elements are non-linear and interact with each other.
 - All narrative elements trigger off PLAYER action.
 - Such triggers are generally TRANSPARENT to the player.

Let's Steal a Design

The Completely Stolen Structures We'll Start With

- Factions Player can Choose Between
- Quests
- Character Growth
- Crafting (weapons, armor, structures, vehicles)
- Non-linear quest structure
- Strong loop between non-combat and combat

Here's a highly original world concept.

Orc Village

Elf Village

Goblin Village

Dwarf Village

And Then There's YOU

Now the New Stuff

The Stars of Orc Village

Henrietta Juliet

The STARS!

What's a Star?

- A Star is an NPC with a set of Passions

Okay, what's a Passion?

Passions Are Not Full Psychological Models

- Tech approach has been to simulate a person, not a character.
- Traditional media narrative models passions, not people.
 - Luke Skywalker – Adventure, father issues, prove himself.
 - Not Luke Skywalker – Vegetarian, tooth decay, Obsessive-Compulsive Disorder.

A PASSION is what a STAR cares about relative to the actions of the PLAYER

A PASSION is what a STAR cares about relative to the actions of the PLAYER

PASSIONS are TRANSPARENT to the PLAYER

PASSIONS are TRANSPARENT to
the PLAYER

A PASSION must be RESPOND to PLAYER action.

Transparency in Relationships

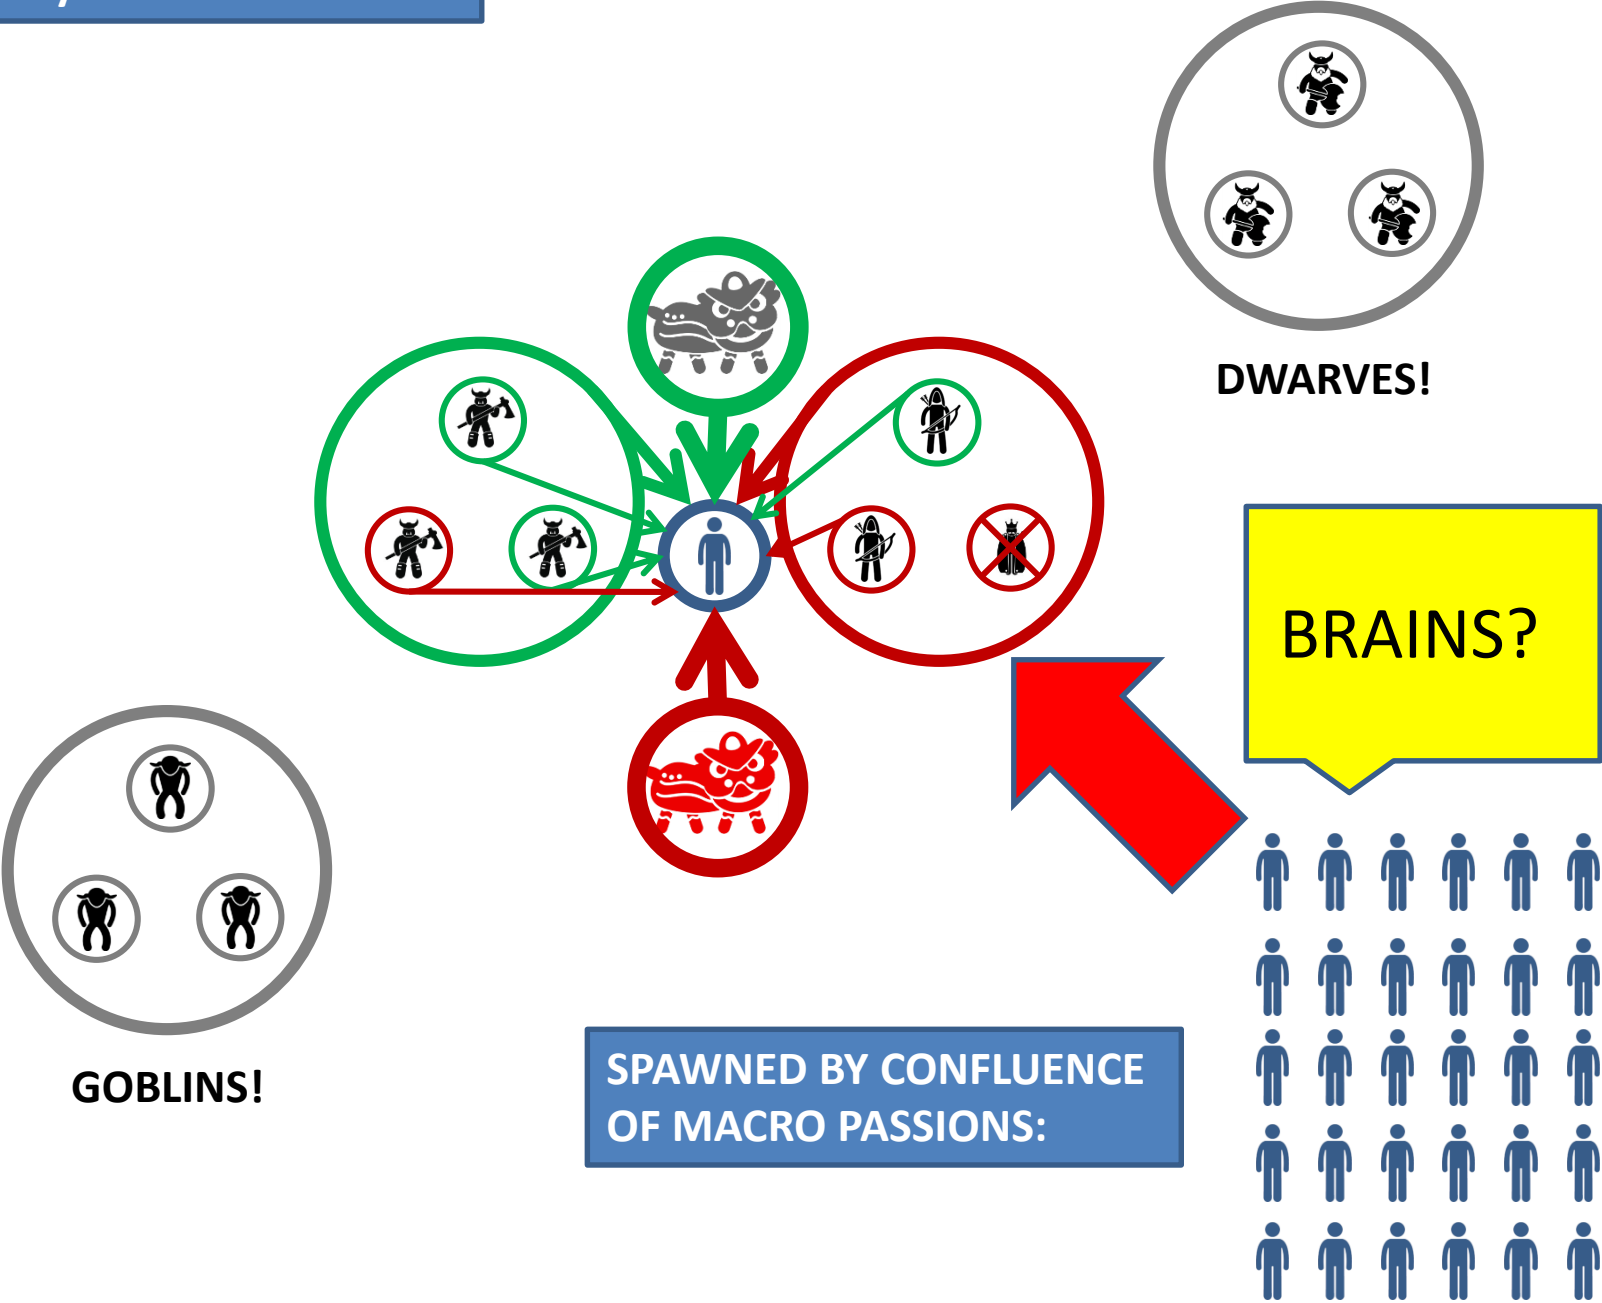

Silver Dragon: 3
(Lots of building, not so much killing!)

What Happens When We Add?

Or Somebody EVERYONE HATES?

Wait a Minute...

Wasn't this a talk about narrative?

Yes.

But REPLAYABLE Narrative
first needs a system to:

- Build a web of nearly infinite relationship states.
- And to allow changes in those states to “fire off” professionally created and crafted content.

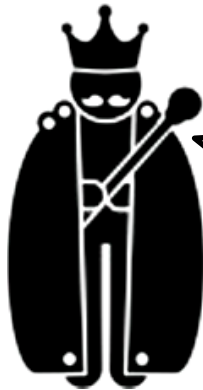

Passion Thresholds Cause Pro-Written and -Recorded Animated Content to Trigger

Take me on to prove myself to Loretta.

Wanna know Frank's secret Passion?

Bring us the girl and wipe away the debt.

You have my axe!

Find the killer before he kills again!

If you let Ted die proving himself to me...

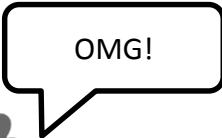

GRRRR!

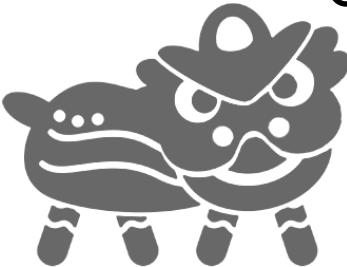

You killed my brother, Romeo!

Tear down the shrines of the infidels!

Unlocks wedding quest

Veronica the Elf

Elf princess

Wedding quest

Craft tuxedo

Craft chapel

Priest's Macro Bar Threshold

Find Ring in Dungeon

Veronica the Elf

Elf princess

Completes Quest MARRIES Veronica

DING! Veronica gives Player combat buff,
1,000 gold, and Family Castle

I Feel like I'm losing Him

Un-Ding! Betty removes Buff from player that Benefitted All Passion Interactions with Dwarves (from when player was leading Betty on...)

Betty the Dwarf

Dwarf Village Farmer

UN-DING! Player can no longer craft crops in Dwarf village

Betty the Dwarf
Dwarf Village Farmer

Here's the thing....

Personality wise, the player much preferred the character of Betty and wanted to spend more time with her questing, interacting....

Betty the Dwarf

Dwarf Village Farmer

But Veronica's castle is really awesome and yields better tools for the player's class/strategy.

Veronica the Elf

Elf princess

With Good Writing, player should have to make physical gain vs. emotional fulfillment decisions.

Which leads to false friends, leading others on, betrayal, reconciliation.

But driven by YOU.

Still Waters Run Deep

- Hidden Passions are NOT TRANSPARENT at first.
- They are resource which the Player can work to reveal (getting to know someone).

Romeo the Elf

Elf prince

DING! Romeo invites Player to go on a quest

Romeo's Player Approval Prompts Him to Reveal His Hidden Passion

Let me tell you all about myself...hopes, dreams, weird anti-Dwarf racism.
By the way, did you know I write poetry?

To Dungeon!

Romeo's Player Approval Prompts Him to Reveal His Hidden Passion

Killing all of these goblins together has cemented our friendship.

I feel as if I can reveal my secret
PASSION:

I am in love with Juliet the orc!

Uh-Oh...I spent a LOT of time beating up the orcs. Where should my loyalties lie?

Romeo the Elf

Elf prince

Orc
reinforcements!

Romeo's Hidden Passion Affects the Quest

Gasp! One of those orcs is Juliet, my secret love!
Please, make sure she isn't harmed in the battle!

JULIET!

...Compared to a Star Without That Passion

Passion #1: Make orcs dead

All orcs look the same with their heads cut off!
